SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

In the Case of Rose Dolley for Mur-der in Portland PORTLAND Jan 30 There were sensational developments in the tlal of Rose Dolley for murder this afternoon Lawyer Anthoine opened for the defence and said he should try to establish that Rose did not kill the child but that it was ber mother who did it

Rose Dolley's sister, Patia, was the first witness She said that when Rose and her mother came home that night Rose sat flown by the fire, after tuking off her clonk, but that her mother went upstairs and changed her clothes Rose Dotley then took the stand, weeping bitterly. She wept all through her testimony, occasionally so violently that her answers could not be heard She said her mother, Ellen Dolley, killed the child. When they were opposite Pride's words, that night, her mother jumped out of the wagon, taking the baby with her. Rose asked her to give the baby back but she said "I'll take care of the baby."

the baby bot her mother sald it would be inpossible in find it now. Rose began to ery but her mother told her to hush. Rose said she told the officers that she murdered the child because she wanted to shield her mother and because her mother had so often reproached her for bringing disgrace to her. Rose told her ross eximined her for an hour but she did not vary from her story.

Talk of Protection Along Long Island Sound

WASHINGTON Jan 10 Representative & Coormick of the first New Yolk district has given special attention to the question of fortifications at the east end of Long Island in connection; with the Senators from Connecticut, who are much interested in the potection of Niw London and other harbors in that State, and he has had interviews with the chief of the United States engineers and others as to the plans of protecting by proper ba teries the various islands at the east end of the sound

The result of these consultations is that he is convinced that if Congress makes an adequate appropriation the work of placing batteries will be begun without delay, and if the work is curiled out to the extent of the recommendation of the engineers, the Connecticut coast the eastern end of the Long Island and all approaches to the sound will be put in a doubtion of defence which will be sufficient to preven the approach of any hostila feet, however nowaful made this morning but after 1 hours of hard labor the work was temporarily suspended the attempt resulted in the vessel being moved but very little, the change in her poel hon as it appeared from the shore being not more than fre feet. The men in charge of the work for the Mortt Wrecking Company are almost discouraged. They depended upon the extraordinarily high tide this morning, but the direction of the wind prevented the water from rising to the desired height. It is said of good authority that the wrecking people do not expect to see the St Paul affort within a month.

agination to think of raining traces. Yet in Australia many labbits have somehow acquired the true climbing habit having been forced, on account of the persecutions of degs and other animals to drop burrowing and mittate squirrels. An Australian sent on to Lugland recently the two front feet of a rubbit that had been killed on un account, three yands from the ground, and he wrote in his letter that this was not at all a remarkable thing, and he had often found them or at least the traces of their claws, on the bark of trees four, five and six yards high For a parrot to cut sheep is another remarkable thing and yet the kea of New Zealand has become a slicep pater having changed to this article of food from a purely vegetable dot. The sea has proved a serious source of annoy-ance to the New Zealand herdsmen and methods have been taken for the destrucment, but it is sheep that they prefer.

They have been known to kill as many as 300 in a single night and have done serious harm to the flocks. The tradition of the island is that at one tradition of the island is that at one time these parrots were mattle to obtain their usual supply of vegetable food and that in desperation they invaded the "drying rooms" and ate whatever came to hand flading sheep meat agreeable. In Leeland almost all the horses are fish eaters, for the reason that the grain is scarce there and fish is plentiful. In England sheep are known who delubt in smalls. We were sently seeded however when she springs up with a cry of loy and runs from the room, crying she hears her Richard step which was indeed true though we had heard nothing more pleasant than the rattle of our plates.

Researtly they comb in all radiant with happiness, hand in hand and thenceforth maight but sweetness and thenceforth maight but sweetness and murth on the part of Mistress Moll who before I been all frown and pout At supper 11r Godwin talls us how his sweethean that here trainly dispelled the clouds that have linur so long over him, he having heard in London that Sn Poter Lely having seen one of his proces desures to see him at Hatfield, where he is painting on good business, and to Hatfield he wall go to discharge this matter before his marriage, which pleasath Moll less than me, I being pleasat to see he is still of the same stort disposition to live an active life In the overning he gives Moll a very In the ovening he gives Moll a very bushiful ing for a troth token which transports her with joy, so that she can not enough caress her lover or this toy not chough caress her lover or this way but falls first to ki-sing one and then to their in a raptime. Dec 10 — Finding among Simon's puttunces a bill for law expenses of one Id in Peurson attorney, at Maidstone I concluded this rust be the most trust worthy man of his kind in the country and so set forth early this morning to seek hun—a reduces, long journey and the roads exceedingly foul. By good lines I found Mr Pearson at home, a rect. I found par Pearson at home, a very civil, shipwed man, as I thuik. Having laid my busness before him, he tells me there will be no difficulty in dividing the estate according to the wishof Mr Godwin and Moll, which may be done by a simple deed of agree ment, and this and send to us for signature in a couple of days But to get the seal to Moll s sindegesion will not be such an easy matter, and unless we are willing to give $700 or $200 in fees we may be kept waiting a year, with the chance of being put to greatur expense to prove being put to greater expense to prove our right, for he tells me the court and all about it are so corrupt that no min inter is valued if he do not, by straight or crooked ways, draw money into the treasury, and that they will rather im-peds then aid the course of justice if it page than he butters, and that none will star a hand to the advantage of any one but ithe king, unless it be secretly to his lower, etc. And, though he will say nothing against kinenin, save, by way of hint, that all then must be counted honers with the latter or record quilty, with a do est full flier are proved guilty, yet he do apprehend he will do all m his power apprehold he will do all mine power to obstruct the grunting of this seal, which it is only reasonable to suppose he will So, to close this discussion, I agree he shall spend as much as £1,000

moltan and a state in Henry than is a queen of Chiney and till mated and so Lord love the both of you!

After staying a couple of home with us he was for going but not before the had given us the instructive history of the torneon the bud entirred by telling his wife, in an unguarded moment of his gallantries with Sukey Taylor por would be be persuaded to sleep at the court and leave next day maintaining that while he had never a pointy in the world he could very housely accept Moll shospitulity but that now being well to do thanks to her bounty he thanked Heaven he had sufficient good breeding and valued humself well enough not to take advantage of her beneficence However, hearing I had a honse of my own and could offer him a bad he willingly agreed to be my guest for the night according me a guest for the might acquarding mel as one of his own quality. We stud to sup at the court where he entercyped as with a lengthy account of his late voyage and how being taken in a tompest his masts had all been swept by the board and his craft so daming at that twas as much as she would hold to gether full he brought her into Pul. mouth where she must he a repairing a venture to see in her And this story be told with such an abundance of detail and so many nautical particulars that no one in the world could have dreamed e was lying He explained to me later on that he He explained to me later on that he had refused to be at the court for fear a glass or two after slapper might lead his tongue astray telling me that he had touched nothing but penny ale all his long journey from Loudon for fear of losing his head and on my asking why he had fabricated that long history of shipwreck he vowed I had put him to it by saying I had a louse of my own where he could he 'For,' says he, 'my ship being had ab will furnish me with a very good excase for coming to spend a day or two with you now and then So may I got another glimpse of my own dear Moll and see her in the fullness of her joy'

He could not sufficiently cry up the excellence of Mr Godwin, his noble his head and on my asking excellence of Mr Gddwin, his noble bearing his frank, hopest countenance his tenderness for Moll etc. and he did truly shed teurs of gratitude to think that now whatever befoll him her wel fare and happiness were assured this was when he had emptied his hot tle and had got to that stage of emotion which usually preceded bousterous hi larity when he was in his ours

And while I am speaking of bottles it will not be amiss to note here for my future warning a grave imprudence of nine which I discovered on leaving the room to seek more wine. On the flame of my candle blowing aside I perceived that I had left my door unfastened so that it now stood agar. And truly this was as culpable a piece of oversight as I could well have committed for here had an enemy or even an idle busybody been passing he might vory well have outered the little passage and overbeard that which had been cur undoing to ave made known

THE AMERICAN SHIP WON A Long Ocean Race with British Salling Vessel

A long ocean race ended when the American ship Willie Rosenfeld came into New York from Caleta Buens South America, just twelve hours before the arrival of the ship Allerton, an Eng lish vessel, and the old saits near tho Erie Basin are reminded of the dave when the American clipper sailing ves sels showed the way to all other salling eraft.

The Willie Rosenfeld is of 2 353 tons register, and is commanded by Captain Danphy, the Allerton is of 1,938 tone burden, and is commanded by Captain Farmer. When they rounded Cape Horn both

Farmer:

When they rounded Cape Horn both ships sailed near many icebergs, and the seamen of the Allerton say that once they sailed within a few hondred feet of a berg which towered high above the top of the mainment, and which was fully half a mile long Between Cape Horn and the Taulkiand Islands the American ship had several narrow escapes from collision with the ice fields and bergs, Sometimes the drew had to bring the ship about suddenly to avoid a crath.

When the equator was crosted the vessels had not sighted cand other. Off Cape Hatterns, where the stormy winds blow vicionity at this season, northwest and southwest gales made the Willie Resenfold labor heavily for twelve days. On January 23 a hurricane from the west they were onliged to put off shore.

When the hurricane had been weathered the caursas were shifted, and the stanch old American vessel arrived twelve hours before the Allerton put in. Both ships bore expose of nitrate of such which is being unloaded into the Eric Hasia Stores. Captain Denphiv said that both he and the captain of the iAllerton had expected that the [Willie Resenfeld would put into port first, as the British vessel, a steel vessel, had not been docked for twenty-five months.

He says if you touch a player's pocket he will spon come to his senses. The trouble is that last senson the pockets of players who were fined were not touched in mos of the cases. How many of the Butimore players were any the poorer in ready cash at the close of the season be cause of the fines they had to pay? Does anyone believe that Joe Kelly, McGraw, Gleason or Brodie would be willing to go upon the witness stand and take oath that they were obliged to pay the frequent fines imposed on them out of their own pockets? The same is true with regard to some of the Cleveland, St. Louis and New York players - with this exception, that in the case of the latter club while the fines were paid at the time by the club, if reports are true, they were educted from the salary due the playe at the end of the season.
